What we're about...

Founded in 2000, sustainability has always been at the heart of what we do. We've achieved a lot since then. Here are just a few of the things that make us who we are.

We introduced organic cotton to our collection back in 2005. Since 2019, all the cotton we're using has been organic.

We first started using recycled polyester back in 2017.

We love to hear from you, and our helpful team are always on hand to have a chat.

Give it a go yourself!

Can what we wear change the world?

If it's organic, then yes it can!

We've measured the impact of every garment we make. Now, with our impact calculator, you can see for yourself the difference you've made by choosing organic and follow the journey of where your clothes have come from.

What's my impact?

In 2020, we started to put QR codes on the care labels of our garments, and we took the time to measure the impact each of them has made on the earth. When scanned, you'll be taken through to a microsite that shows you the water and energy savings, as well as the emissions and pesticides avoided by going organic.

Follow the supply chain

Every garment has its own story, and now you can follow it. From the raw materials, through the whole manufacturing process, you can have peace of mind about where your clothes have been made.

Spread the love!

The best thing? All information is presented on a white label site. This means that there's no mention of Mantis World anywhere, so you can share the good news. Let your customers know the impact they're making by going organic, and see the story of how their garment was made.

Embracing In-Conversion Cotton

We believe organic cotton plays a key part in the fight against climate change. It's good for the earth and good for the people who grow it. That's why we love it.

What is In-Conversion Cotton?

When a farmer decides to convert their farm to organic, they honour sustainable farming practices from day one. Gone are the toxic chemical pesticides and fertilisers which damage the soil. The problem is that for many farmers, the cost is still too great. Certification takes up to three years and they can only expect the financial reward once they are certified.

Why we support it

The cotton grown in the interim is what we call In-Conversion. Grown in the same way as organic, there's no reason why farmers shouldn't be paid fairly for these crops in the meantime. After all, they're contributing to a better future, not just for themselves and their families, but also the planet!

For us, this is another way of securing future supply and price stability, and supporting as many farmers as we can through their conversion journey.

We'll be introducing In-Conversion cotton across our range from 2022.

Our In-Conversion cotton is certified by GOTS and OCS, so you have total peace of mind.

The journey to Organic

Conventional Cotton

- Uses a lot of toxic chemicals
- Poisons air, water and soil
- Harmful to people and animals living in the area
- Uses genetically-modified seeds

In-Conversion Cotton

- Period of at least 2 years after having adopted organic farming practices
- All toxic chemicals are removed from the process
- Farmers use regenerative processes, like crop rotation, to help the soil recover
- No more genetically-modified seeds
- Certified as In-Conversion by GOTS and OCS

Certified Organic Cotton

- After a minimum of 2 years
- Farmers enjoy high crop prices and healthier communities
- Regenerative farming means better food security for farmers and their families
- Healthy soil can absorb harmful carbon from the atmosphere – helping to reverse climate change
- Certified as Organic by GOTS and OCS

Our Certifications

Certifying quality and fairness throughout the supply chain.

Organic from start to finish

GOTS is the best way for us to make sure that everyone in the supply chain is happy, safe and honouring organic practices. From the farmers to the finished garment, you can have total peace of mind.

It's all about the material

If a garment is labelled OCS 100, that means it's 100% organic cotton, whereas OCS blended means there's something else in the mix, like rPET.

Taking product safety seriously

Oeko-Tex® ensures that all our garments have been tested for any nasty chemicals that nobody wants in their clothes. We hold the highest level of classification, class 1.

Making sure our rPET is the real deal

We use recycled polyester in some of our garments, and RCS makes sure that any recycled material we use is definitely recycled!

Kind to the planet and everything on it

There are no animal products used in any of our garments, meaning we're vegan friendly.

Our viscose doesn't come from endangered woodlands

We don't use a lot of viscose, but when we do, Canopy help us make sure it's not been made with wood from ancient forests.

Our Memberships and Awards

Joining forces for meaningful change.

Creating a safe and fair workplace for everyone

The Fair Wear Foundation connects brands like us with factories, unions and governments around the world to ensure workers are given the rights and dignity they're owed.

Working together for a cleaner textile industry

The fashion industry is one of the most polluting in the world, but working towards joint aims set by the UN's Fashion Industry Charter for Climate Action, we can make a real difference.

Collaboration is key

The Partnership for Sustainable Textiles – or Textilbündnis – brings us together with other organisations to work towards shared social and environmental goals across the industry.

Benchmarking, Innovation and Collaboration

We've been a member of Textile Exchange for over a decade, and as a non-profit organisation they do a great job of bringing the industry together and promoting sustainable and ethical practice.

Climate leaders in the fight against greenhouse gases

We won the 2021 Ryan Young Climate+ Award in recognition of our commitment to reaching Textile Exchange's Climate+ goal of reducing textile industry emissions by 45% before 2030, protecting water and soil health and promoting biodiversity.
